On Twitter, a reader notes that black homicides tend to be more seasonal than white homicides: This more or less checks out: blacks died by homicide according to the CDC death certificate database about 22% more in June to August over the years 1999-2020 than in December to February. For whites, the seasonal gap was only 7%; for Hispanics 18%.

Why are there 22% more black homicide victims in summer ...
